MARY JANE

TAKES WATER

Beautiful Boat Built by Cloverport Foundry and Machine Company Launched Saturday.

NOT A SINGLE MISAP OCCURS

Saturday evening, as the sun in all its setting splendor had said good-night over the hill to the west of the city, the beautiful pleasure boat "MARY JANE" so named for the little Miss Mary Jane and Jane Lightfoot, daughters of J. W. Pate and Dr. F. L. Lightfoot, was launched. As she glided majestically on the bosom of the Ohio, the owners, J. W. Pate, Dr. F. L. Lightfoot and Fred Frazer, realized all they had wished for.

The Mary Jane is as pretty a piece of workmanship as will be seen anywhere. Finished beautifully inside and out and equipped with one of the latest and best patterned of Fairbanks-Morse Marine engines, and an Auto steering gear, which places the boat under the complete control of one man. She has an 18 horsepower, 3 cylinder, 2 cycle, 3 port engine and with a length of 30 feet and a width of 6 feet 7 inches makes a speed of 10 miles an hour in dead water. She has 6 wicker chairs and 6 folding chairs in front and seats for 8 people in the rear making a total seating capacity of 20. The above mentioned corporation should be congratulated on turning out a piece of work of this kind.

Casper Family Reunion

Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Casper, sons-in-law, daughters and daughters-in-law held a family reunion on Monday of last week. The occasion was the home-coming of Mrs. Jo. James, Mich and family from Louisville. Dr. John Casper and family came over from Jasper and Mr. and Mrs. August Heck and two children were already here from St. Louis. They sat down to a most deliciously prepared dinner and supper which all greatly enjoyed. Out of this family are three physicians and one dentist. The senior Mr. Casper is a partner in the largest dry goods concern in Cannelton and president of the Cannelton State Bank. His eldest son, Mich, is a leading physician in Louisville. Another son, John, is practicing medicine at Jasper and is rapidly coming to the front. Jim, another son, graduated in dentistry in Louisville over a year ago, and is practicing his profession there. Jo has one more term of lectures at Louisville before he graduates. He is now located at St. Mary's and Elizabeth's hospital there. Mr. and Mrs. Casper have one daughter and two sons who live at home here. Besides the immediate members of the family, Mrs. Mary Burke, of Leopold, mother of Mrs. Casper was present and will spend a month with them.—Cannelton Telephone.

JUNIORS LOSE

SECOND CONTEST

Young Bunch of Balltossers From County Seat Take Locals Into Camp to the Tune of 8 to 7.

PUMPKIN ROLLERS DEFEATED

IN EXTRA INNING GAME.

The second game between the Hardinsburg and Cloverport Junior teams was played on the local diamond last Saturday morning. As the teams are almost evenly matched it was an exciting game from start to finish, the visitors, however, took the long end of an 8 to 7 score. The Hardinsburg boys won the game on their own merits, putting up a little classic article of ball than the home boys.

Tucker did the twirling for the locals and had the game clinched until the seventh when Tucker became rattled and soared into loftier atmosphere. In this inning the visitors annexed the necessary runs. Jabine was sent in to pitch the remainder of the game and held the visitors safe. Hook and Hoben pitched a good game for the visitors. Both were hit freely but kept the hits well scattered and were effective in tight places.

10 Inning Game.

A large crowd of enthusiastic fans witnessed the game between the Tobinsport Pumpkin Rollers and the Hardinsburg Regulars on the Tobinsport lot Saturday afternoon. The game went to the regulars by the score of 11 to 6, after a hard, ten-inning struggle. The Regulars bunched hits in the tenth and sent three runners across home plate.

Whitehead pitched the sort of ball that will win nine times out of ten, but was given very poor support by his team-mates. The Regulars scoring the majority of their runs on errors. Puchs pitched seven innings for the Regulars, being replaced by Brown, whose benders were a puzzle to the Pumpkin Rollers.

Pumpkin Rollers Down Dexter.

Sunday afternoon the Pumpkin Rollers completely outclassed the team from Dexter, Ind., winning easily by the score of 9 to 1. Esray and Basinger were the opposing pitchers.

Coca-Colas Win and Lose

Large crowds attended both games between the Coca-Cola team from Owensboro, and the Hardinsburg nine at the Hardinsburg Athletic Park Wednesday and Thursday of last week. The Coca-Cola won the first game easily by the score of 9 to 4. Thursday with the aid of a Portland Battery the Hardinsburg boys walloped them by the score of 7 to 0.

Look Here! 21 to 4.

Enraged by their defeat on the previous day, the Cloverport Juniors took delight in administering the most cruel punishment on the Junior nine on the north side of the river Sunday afternoon. The game was one-sided from the beginning. The final count was 21 to 4. Tucker pitched for the locals.

Baltowts Defeat Blue Belts

Baltowts put the rollers under the blue Belts by a score of 14 to 15. The game will be returned to the Baltowts boys on August 8. Baltowts will make a fine diamond on the farm of G. P. Burdett. Let everybody come on August 8. A good game and a good time.

Giants Win.

In a game full of thrills and excitement the Cloverport Giants, colored, defeated Hawesville's Best Sunday afternoon. Score 17 to 15.

The remains were interred at Glasgow.

Dr. Ball Here.

Dr. Robert J. Ball, of Murfreesboro, Tenn., was here Monday the guest of friends, enroute to his home at Hardinsburg.

The Republican County Committee met in Hardinsburg last Saturday for the purpose of naming time, place and manner of selecting candidates for the various county officers. All precincts were represented in person or by proxy save two. There was also a good attendance of Republicans outside of the committee. There was perfect harmony good feeling and a desire on the part of all present to do the best thing for the party and select the best men for the offices.

The Hon. John P. Haswell, Jr., county chairman, in calling the convention to order said that he was glad to see so large a crowd present. It is an indication of the great party we represent in its splendid shape for the business that is before us. Never saw the party in finer shape and just so sure as November comes our party will take possession of the offices in this Court House. Breckenridge county is a Republican county and the policies of our great leaders, Lincoln, Roosevelt and Taft have made her so. We are the dominant party in Kentucky now and she will remain that way if we put good men for the offices. It is now up to Breckenridge county to do her part. If she does not do it she do not be worthy of the name Republican. I shall not take the position of "boss" in the selection of the men. Select your own candidates and see that absolute fairness obtains in their selection. Select good men and my word for it you will win in November. Mr. Haswell's speech seemed to stir the boys up and his speech was loudly applauded.

Secretary, Allen R. Kincheole, called the roll of members. All the precincts were represented except two.

The Hon. Chas. Hanford was in favor of making the meeting executive, one excluding all Democrats. Not that he disliked Democrats or meant any dis-courtesy to them but he thought it the proper thing to have only known Republicans present.

Herbert Beard was on his feet at once and said he was opposed to the motion. He said they expected to get a whole lot of Democrats in November and he was opposed to treating them so discourteously so early in the season.

Sherman just rose to a point of order. He said some of the speakers were not members of the committee and had no voice in the meeting.

The Chair ruled that this was a meeting of Republicans and all had a right to express their views. He wanted the co-operation of all Republicans in Breckenridge county and expressions of their views was all right. He overruled the point of order.

Amel Oels was in favor of an open meeting and offered a motion to that effect which was carried.

John Eskridge, of Harrod, made a motion that conventions be held in all precincts to name delegates to a county convention.

Mr. Oels favored this motion and suggested that the time be the third Saturday in August for the precinct conventions and the fourth Monday for the county convention.

Mr. Ball wanted the time set for 9 o'clock so there would be no chance for a snap convention.

On motion the time for precinct conventions was set for Saturday Aug. 21, at 2 o'clock p. m. and county convention Monday, Aug. 23 at 2 o'clock. Basis of representation, one delegate for every 40 votes cast for Taft.

"KENTUCKY SPIRITS"

Distilled by A. Louise Babbage

From The American Press, New York, July 17th

At the Kentucky Press Association's fourth annual meeting at East Springs, near Beach Hargis' home in the mountains of Kentucky, the only spirits handed out were good ones.

Each and every editor slipped with the others the delightful features on the program prepared by the foreign committee on entertainment—C. E. Wood, E. D. Miller and Louis Landrum.

Their efforts hit like missiles out of a shotgun, and not one guest was present who did not feel the strong glow of a glorious time.

o o o

An editor who has worn a smile and a flower every day for twenty years is Dan Bowman, editor of the Woodford Sun, Versailles. Mr. Bowman says that is one way he has been able to keep his subscribers by his flowers and smiles.

o o o

One of the most popular men at the meeting was "Rich's Brother." The card he handed around is herewith given: "Having been known heretofore in the K. P. A. as 'Rich's Brother' and his presence here making it necessary, I herewith introduce myself as Elram A. Richardson, Taylor County Equiner, Campbellsville, Ky. Howdy."

o o o

One of the most interesting young women at the meeting was Miss Laura Rollins. She came down from the mountains accompanied by James Stuckeifer, whose father is editor of the Pineville Sun. Miss Rollins has a head chuck full of business sense, and what she had stuffed up her sleeve for increasing circulation was marvelous.

o o o

Green Keller, editor of the Carlisle Mercury, helped rock the cradle of the Kentucky Press Association when it first saw the light forty years ago. Mr. Keller is one of the oldest and most interested members of the association.

o o o

The only real moonshiner is O. J. Miller, of the Clinch Printing Company, Richmond. His birthplace was where the ballroom now stands at Estill. "It was fourteen years ago," said Mr. Miller, "that I left for Richmond and entered the printshop, but I still love the mountain spot near Irvine."

o o o

Thursday was the big day. It is Perry of the Sun Sentinel, Winchester, brought to East Springs guests, the company of jolly people including his printing office force and postal clerks. Mr. Perry is one of the most successful newspaper men in the association and has an army of friends.

o o o

An author who has created much fame is Louis Landrum. The snake story, which he tells were never found in the grass or underbrush. And the way that he can keep it out. He gets every one scared up a tree for fear he will take out a snake story in print on them.

o o o

H. H. Summers, of Elizabethtown, has been appropriately nicknamed "watchdog for the K. P. A." He has kept the association out of more quabbles than any other member. It is through his vigilant faithfulness that the Kentucky Press Association has had such a perfect life. Every editor sings his praise and provides meat for the watchdog.

Charles Howard, editor of the Hogenville Herald, and John D. Babbage, editor of the Breckenridge News, are the only editors in the association who have edited a paper nearly thirty years without shifting from pillar to post. Both Mr. Babbage and Mr. Howard have stuck to the bush, and it is hard to tell which has got the more berries.

o o o

Among the guests entertained by the Kentucky Press Association none were more thoroughly enjoyed and appreciated than Mr. and Mrs. Ridge of Cincinnati. Mr. Ridge represented the A. P. A., which is like a star in the east to the newspaper world. The Kentucky editors have been rendering a course of laudation to The American Press, the wonderful journal that visits its office in the United States each week.

o o o

A man's name that should be changed is T. C. Underwood, of Hopkinsville. It should be Topwood, for he is always up and doing, and you can't down him. If he can't come in smiling himself get there by making some other fellow laugh out loud. This is President Underwood.

o o o

One of the most beloved presidents was Mr. Tim Needham, editor of the Williamson Courier, who gave up the chair at this meeting. Mr. Needham is one of the oldest as well as the youngest members of the association.

o o o

One of the most beautiful acts of kindness that took place during the meeting was that of Mr. Meacham of Hopkinsville, nominating for president Mr. Tom Underwood, his competitor. Every member of the association remarked Mr. Meacham's unselfish spirit toward the new president.

o o o

One of the most popular men in the association is A. D. Miller. Mr. Miller carries more than one load on his shoulders, for during this meeting he was elected president of the Eighth District League.

o o o

The Kentucky Press Association adjourned after one of the most successful and enjoyable meetings in its history. Quite a debate resulted from the introduction of a resolution declaring in favor of school suffrage for women in Kentucky. Before a vote was taken the resolution was withdrawn.

When the election of officers for the ensuing year was taken up T. C. Underwood, editor of the Kentucky New Era, at Hopkinsville, was elected president. A. D. Miller, of Richmond, was president, and Dan Howman, of Versailles, secretary.

The wintry banquet given by the Messrs. Ridge, proprietors of Estill Springs, was a splendid affair and was taken up to the limit by every one who attended. Joaett Shouse, of Lexington, was toastmaster.

Appeal to Drivers.

The Woman's auxiliary to the Kentucky Humane society has issued the following well timed appeal to owners and drivers of horses and mules:

Use your horses and mules as your self. Do not overwork them. Do not hurry them; do not overload them. Hunt shade for them to stand in. A little trouble might save a lot of money.

Remember horses and mules can become hopelessly insane from standing in the hot sun.

Wash the heads and mouth with a sponge.

Hats are good; use them.

Do not use a tight checkrein, A horse cannot pull well.

Remember this is fly time. Why add to the torture of fly bites an uncomfortable, false position of the head?

Give your horse all he wants to eat, and time enough to eat it.

Century Magazine for July.

Mr. A. S. Chapman's article upon the boyhood of John Hay, illustrated with many portraits, would alone make the Century Magazine for July worth while. Major-General A. W. Greely's review of Lieutenant Shackleton's expedition to the South Pole derives its interest from the fact that General Greely is one of the greatest living authorities upon polar exploration. The illustrations of Mr. Robert Haven Schaufuss' article upon Robt. Hood in his series "Romantic Germany" prove his assertion that it is one of the most picturesque Old World towns. The Rev. Dr. H. Wood Worcester's reply to the Emmanuel movement deals luminously with the subject. Mr. George E. Woolberry's verse entitled "Prosopias," written at Lake Purgus, is haunting in its faultfulness and melody; it is of a high order of poetry, even for the Century. Dr. S. Weir Mitchell's story "The Society of the Grotto" is a really attractive feature of this well edited midsummer number.

If you have pains in the back, weak bladder or any other indication of a weakened or disordered condition of the kidneys or bladder, you should get Dr. Williams' Kidney and Bladder Pills right away when you experience the least sign of kidney or bladder complaint, but be sure that you get Dr. Williams' Kidney and Bladder Pills. We know what they will do for you, and if you will send your name to E. C. Dewitt & Co., Chicago, you will receive a free trial box of these kidney and bladder pills. They are sold here by all druggists.

Kentucky To Show Corn.

M. C. Rankin, commissioner in the Department of Agriculture labor and statistics has been appointed vice president for Kentucky of the National Corn Association and announces that the State will make an exhibit at the National Corn Exposition in Omaha, December 6 to 19.

Arrangements were made at a conference of Corn Association officials with Mr. Rankin in Frankfort this week and it is expected Kentucky grain will take a high place and win many of the last worth $50,000 which is offered at the show in Omaha. Mr. Rankin has one hundred or more boys in Kentucky growing corn from pure seed. They will show this in an exhibit to be held at the Kentucky State fair grounds and then the best will go to the National show.

As is well known Kentucky stands high as a corn producing state when acreage is considered. It is the hope of Mr. Rankin and his co-workers to bring the average yield per acre up to among the best in the United States.

Life 100,000 Years Ago.

Scientists have found in a cave in Switzerland bones of man, who lived 100,000 years ago, when life was in constant danger from wild beasts. Today the danger, as shown by A. W. Brown, of Alexander, Me., is largely from deadly disease. "If I had not been for Dr. King's New Discovery, which cured me, I could not have lived," he writes, "suffering as I did from a severe lung trouble and stubborn cough." To Cure Coughs, Colds, Obstructed Glands, and prevent Pneumonia, it is the best medicine on earth. Price, 50 cents. Guaranteed by S. S. Davis & Co., Trial bottle free.

ARE OUR ROADS TOO WIDE?

German Highways Narrower, but Better Maintained, Says a Consul.

The following information concerning the superiority of the highways of Germany as compared with those of the United States is furnished by Robert J. Thompson, consul at Hanover.

German roads are perhaps subjected to a hundred times more traffic than similar roads in the United States. These roads range from twenty to thirty feet in width, while in our middle and western states, where traffic is comparatively light, we take land of an average value of $100 per acre and cut it up with roadways sixty-six feet in width, practically two-thirds of the same being given over to woods, which furnish an inexhaustible supply of seeds for the invading farm lands.

The farmer in Germany who has conquered the weeds on his ground need have no thought of them being started again from unweeded or uncared for land along the roadways. There are no weeds, no mud, no chuck holes, no sand strewn in the roads.

One of the simplest and most practical measures that could be taken for the betterment of roads in the United States would be to reduce their width to from one-third to one-half of what they now are.

In the United States public highways in the states given below may be estimated as follows: Minnesota, 61,000; Wisconsin, 61,000; Michigan, 61,000; Iowa, 70,000; Kansas, 70,000; Nebraska, 70,000; Missouri, 80,000; Illinois, 80,000; Indiana, 70,000; Ohio, 80,000; total, 700,000 acres. Including the width of these public highways, which now average sixty-six feet, to thirty-six feet would give ten to the farmers of these states for cultivation 2,500,000 acres of generally tillable land, which at an average valuation of $100 per acre would mean the restoration to the producing values of the states named of $250,000,000.

A Hint to the Housewife.

For the careful housewife intent upon detecting adulterants in foods the following hint from the Scientist may be acceptable. It is a test for determining the amount of copper used as coloring matter in canned peas, and, while perhaps not so simple as testing a bit on a spoon or wetting a finger and holding in the breeze, the experiment readily may be carried out in any household fitted with a $10.00 laboratory properly equipped. Here it is:

"The quantity of copper may be determined by incinerating the vegetable, leaching the ash with nitric acid, evaporating to dryness, dissolving the residue in hydrochloric acid, neutralizing the solution with ammonia, acidifying it slightly with hydrochloric acid and precipitating the copper with zinc in a vessel of platinum." Do you think you'll try it?

Soothes itching skin. Heals cuts or burns without a scar. Cures piles, eczema, salt rheum, any itching. Than's Ointment. Your druggist sells it.

The American Youth.

If the truth were told most young American men are not especially interesting. They do not keep up their reading. They have a national obduracy when it comes to music, to art, to literature, or to many of them take any of these things at all seriously.

The young among them are not good conversationalists. Our cleverest men are monologists, pure and simple. They lecture admirably. They are born orators along modified lines. They are invincible story tellers. None of this is conversation, and women like conversation, like its courtesies, which at least pretend a little interest when their turn comes in the game. Knowledge of people and affairs outside our own country pricks more than one bubble about our young men.—Anna A. Rogers in Atlantic.

WHERE THE NEWS STANDS.

We have no apologies to make in hoisting the Democratic ticket at the head of our columns. Existing conditions warrant this statement. Men are above party and politics, especially in county affairs. Our aim has always been to support the best men for the offices regardless of party. We have heeded to this line on more than one occasion. It gives us especial pleasure at this time to support the ticket named by the Democrats for the reason that they are all good, clean men and worthy. The cry of all men of all parties has been and is for good men, reliable men, sober men, honest men to fill our offices. For more than thirty years now we have had something to do with the naming of the men who have filled our county offices, sometimes, our men have been chosen and some defeated. Not in all these years, has any party put up a better, cleaner, finer set of men than has been named by the Democrats, and appears at the head of our columns. All men, rich and poor, high and low, can vote for this ticket.

The thing for the voters to do, who believe in good men for the offices is to get in line and work for this ticket.

Our good friend, Geo. W. Dodson, of Fyrmire, sends us a communication endorsing Senator R. W. Owen, another good friend for a certain vote he cast while in the Senate on an Insurance Bill. Mr. Dodson takes the position that Senator Owen voted against the farmer's interest in supporting this bill. We have never seen or read the bill and know nothing about it. Mr. Owen says he don't remember voting for such a bill. If he did he was not aware at the time that it in any way affected the interests of the farmers. He says further that it would hardly be natural for him to cast a vote that would in any way affect the farmer, as he is a farmer, born and reared on the farm and their interest is his and always has been. Mr. Owen says all men are liable to make mistakes and if he made a mistake in this matter it was clearly an oversight and he is sorry for it.

We know that in Dick Owen the farmers never had a better friend. His dealings are all with the farmers and it is not his nature to go against them in anything that is all right and just.

We think Mr. Dodson is wrong in censuring Mr. Owen and that he is not fully acquainted with the merits of the bill or of Mr. Owen's vote.

Mrs. Brown, the Chaplain, Gives An Interesting Account of Peruna.

MRS. MARY M. BROWN.

Mrs. Mary M. Brown, President of the W. R. C. T. U., of East Providence, R. I., is also Chaplain Woman's Relief Corps, and Past Department President of the W. R. C. of the State of Rhode Island. This prominent lady writes an open letter to suffering women all over the United States. Her letter is as follows:

The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio.
Gentlemen—Socially as well as officially, I meet a large number of women, old and young; bright, intelligent women who do their own thinking and form their own opinions. You will therefore be pleased to know that Peruna is a favorite remedy among women, and that it is generally considered superior to any prescription known in cases of catarrh and weakness peculiar to the sex. I have had occasion several times in cases of cold and depression to use Peruna and have found it very effective.

Stories With a Flavor of the Soil.

Uncle Joe Williams Swallows a Peach Stone.

Last Saturday night as dark as it was Uncle Joe Williams, our jailer, and Squire Quince Johnson, the Magistrate in District No. 6 went out in the north-west part of the county on a peach stealing expedition. Quince was the pilot and secured his companion to Mr. Edelin's orchard where the trees were bending under a load of the luscious fruit. Both men had to feel for the peaches as it was too dark to see them. Uncle Joe was eating at the same time he was filling his basket. Finally Quince noticed that Uncle Joe's arms were going around like he had a fit. He called to him but there was no response. Finally he got hold of him and inquired what was the matter. In a few minutes Uncle Joe seemed to come to and had recovered his voice. He had gotten a whole peach in his mouth at once and it disturbed his false teeth. In his struggle not to swallow his peach he swallowed the peach seed. They got home shortly before day, Uncle Joe refusing to talk to his companion. He said at last: "Quince, I have got that stone down but how am I to digest it? Quince told him that his experience was that whiskey would digest anything Uncle Joe tried a pint. It seemed to go to his head instead of his stomach and he has still got that peach seed. When we last saw him he was going around to the doctors to find something to take that would dissolve a peach stone.—Elizabethtown News.

Cow Test.

The State Board of Health has issued a sweeping proclamation, requiring every cow in the State to be subjected to the tuberculin test, ordering the immediate destruction of those which the test shows to be infected with tuberculosis, and providing that no cattle can hereafter be brought into the State until the tuberculin test has been shown that they are free from tuberculous germs. Experiments conducted by Dr. Cyrus W. Field, bacteriologist and pathologist of the University of Louisville, under the direction of a milk commission, appointed by the Jefferson County Fiscal Court, resulted in this recommendation, which is intended to protect the health of the consumers of milk, who might otherwise, be infected with tuberculosis from cattle.

NEEDFUL KNOWLEDGE

Cloverport People Should Learn

To Detect The Approach Of Kidney Disease.

The symptoms of kidney trouble are so unmistakable that they leave no ground for doubt. Sick kidneys excrete a thick, cloudy, offensive urine, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding. The back aches constantly, headaches and dizzy spells may occur and the victim is often weighed down by a feeling of languor and fatigue. Neglect these warnings and there is danger of dropsy, Bright's Disease, or diabetes. Any one of these symptoms is warning enough to begin treating the kidneys at once. Delay often proves fatal.

You can use no better remedy than Doan's Kidney Pills. Here's Cloverport proof:

John H. Wills, Judge of police court, High St., Cloverport, Ky., says: "I have no hesitation in pronouncing Doan's Kidney Pills the best remedy I know for the purposes for which they are intended. I take pleasure in recommending them to other persons who may be suffering from disordered kidneys. I will be pleased to answer any questions about Doan's Kidney Pills at any time."

Will Attend The Big Democratic Barbecue at Louisville.

Promoters of the big Jeffersonian barbecue which is to be given by the Fifth District Democracy on the State Fair grounds in Louisville on August 25 and 26 have selected former Mayor Charles F. Grainger as the general chairman of the executive and all sub-committees, and the announcement is made that Mr. Grainger has accepted. The promoters have not only secured the fair grounds for the big event, but have arranged with all the railroads for a rate to Louisville that will be the cheapest that has been in force in Kentucky for years. The rate will enable Democrats from the most remote sections of the state to visit the metropolis. Invitations are being prepared now and will be sent out immediately to all the Democratic members of Kentucky's delegation in Congress, also to Democratic nominees for both branches of the General Assembly. All will be present and during the two days it is planned to have speeches by not less than 100 of the state's crack Democratic orators. Some of the donations that are being received by state Democrats are unique. Charles McCall, of Pineville, the recently elected president of the State Bar Association, is kind one car load of coal. As this cannot be used the committee will sell it. James Garnett, of Adair county, will send two hundred of best cattle. Col. A. D. One of Mr. Garnett's constituents from the Eleventh District, who is ninety-odd years old, is to ride a mule from his mountain home down to the State Fair grounds. He has voted for every Democratic nominee for President from the time he became of age to the present time. Up to this time a number of business houses have offered a sufficient number of floats to cover ten squares of space in the parade. The promoters say this parade will be the highest and the longest ever seen on the streets of Louisville. Col. A. D. Martin leads the list of parade entries with six floats. The Kentucky Counties have agreed to take charge of the marching club division of the parade and invitations will be sent to the marching clubs of all other cities, requesting them to participate in the celebration here. The promoters of the big demonstration say that if they do not bring 50,000 Democrats to Louisville during the two days they will be disappointed. "This is to be the opening gun," said one, "in the fight to be made to redeem Louisville and Kentucky from Republican rule."

CHAPTER XIV
THE "clap of death" implements were being carried from the ring, and Jim turned away to see the men loading.

Performers again rushed by each other on their way to and from the main tent.

Polly stood in the center of the lot, looking and anxious. The mere action of the pastor's name had made it seem impossible for her to ride to night. For hours she had been sitting herself up to the point of doing it, and now her courage failed her. She followed Barker as he came from the ring.

"Mr. Barker, please!"

He turned upon her sharply. "Well, what is it now?"

"I want to ask you to let me off again tonight," she spoke in a short, jerky, desperate way.

"What?" he asked. "Not go into the ring, with all them people inside what's paid their money because they know you?"

"That's it," she cried. "I can't do it!"

"You're getting too long," Barker answered. "That's the trouble with you. You ain't been good for nothing since you was at that parson's house. You didn't stay there, and you're no use here. First thing you know you'll be out all round."

"Out?"

"Sure. You don't think I'm going to head my bill with a 'dead one,' do you?"

"I am not a 'dead one,'" she answered excitedly. "I'm the best rider you've had since mother died. You've said so yourself."

"That was before you got in with them church cranks. I'll talk about your mother! Why, she'd be ashamed to own you."

"She wouldn't," cried Polly. Her eyes were flashing, her face was scarlet. The pride of hundreds of years of ancestry was quivering with indignation. "I can ride as well as I ever could, and I'll do it too."

"Tomorrow," cried Barker. "What do you mean by that?"

"I mean that I can't go into that ring tonight," she declared, "and I won't."

She was desperate now and trading upon a strength beyond her own.

He looked at her with noncommittal indecision. She was a good rider, the best since her mother, as he had often told her. He could see this meant an issue. He felt she would be on her mettle tomorrow, as far as her work was concerned, if he let her alone tonight.

"All right," he said sullenly. "You can stay off tonight. I got the crowd in there anyway, and I got their money. I'll let them do a turn on Barnabian, but tomorrow you'd better show me your old net."

"I'll show you," she cried. "I'll show you."

"Well, see that you do," He crossed into the ring.

Polly stood where Barker had left her, white and tense. Jim came toward her from the direction of the wagons. He glanced at her uneasily. "What's he been saying to you?"

"He says I can't ride any more."

Her lips closed tightly. She stared straight ahead of her. "He says I was no good to the people that took me in and I'm no use here."

"It's not so," thundered Jim.

"No, it's not," she cried. "I'll show him, Jim! I'll show him tomorrow!"

She turned toward the dressing tent. Jim caught her firmly by the wrist.

"Wait, Polly. You ain't ever going into the ring a-foolin' that way." Her eyes met his defiantly.

"What's the difference? What's the difference?" She wrenched her wrist quickly from him and ran into the dressing tent, laughing hysterically.

"An' I bring her back to it," muttered Jim as he turned to give orders to the property men.

Most of the "first half props" were loaded, and some of the men were asleep under the wagons. The lot was clear. Suddenly he felt some one approaching from the direction of the enclosure. He turned and found himself face to face with the stern, solitary figure of the pastor, wrapped in his long black cloak. The moonlight slipped through a rift in the clouds and fell into a circle around them.

"What made you come here?" was all Jim said.

"I heard that Miss Polly didn't ride today. I was afraid she might be ill."

"What's that to you?"

"She isn't ill?" Douglas demanded anxiously, oblivious to the grumblings in the big fellow's voice.

"She's all right," Jim answered shortly as he shifted uneasily from one foot to the other and avoided the pastor's burning gaze.

"And she's happy, she's content?"

"Sure."

"I'm glad," said Douglas loudly. He tried to think of some way to prolong their talk. "I've never heard from her, you know."

"I'm folks don't get much time to write," Jim turned away and began tinkering with one of the wagons. Douglas had walked up and down in

Often The Kidneys Are

Weakened by Over-Work.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

Weak and unhealthy kidneys are responsible for much sickness and suffering, therefore, if kidney trouble is perceived to continue, various results are most likely to follow. Your other organs may need attention, but your kidneys must, because they do most and should have attention first. Therefore, when your kidneys are weak or out of order, you can understand how quickly your entire body is affected and how every organ seems to fail to do its duty.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the great kidney remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root. A trial will convince you of its great merit.

"I feel just like Jim!"

"It's just the rules," he then told him. "There was another case: then Douglass started slowly out of the lot."

"She isn't a minute," called Jim, though the words had been wrong from him. The pastor came back with a question in his eyes.

"I feel just like you."

"She's not well, then?"

"Oh, yes, she's well enough. It ain't that; it's about her being happy."

"She isn't?" Douglass made a note of unconscious exultation in his voice.

"No. She ain't happy here, an' she was happy with you."

"When will she leave you?"

"I don't know. She wants to go to it at first. Somethin' must 'a' happened afterwards, somethin' that you an' me didn't know about."

"We'll know about it, Jim. Where is she?"

His voice had regained its old command. He felt that he could conquer words.

"You can't do no good that way," answered Jim. "She don't want to see you again."

"I don't know," but she told me she'd run away if I ever went talked to you about her."

"You needn't talk, Jim. I'll talk for myself. Where is she?"

"She'll be comin' out soon. You can wait around out here with me. I'll let her come in time."

He led the way through a narrow passage between the wagons.

Jim and Douglas had barely left the lot when Deacon Elverson's usual round head slipped cautiously around the corner of the dressing tent. The little deacon glanced excitedly about him. He was monarch of all he surveyed.

Strong returned almost immediately from his unsuccessful search for the pastor. He looked about the lot for Elverson.

"YOU TALK ABOUT YOUR MOTHER. WHY SHE'D BE ASHAMED TO OWN YOU!"

"He, there, Elverson!" he called lustily. There was no response.

"Now, where's he got to?" grumbled Strong. He disappeared quickly around the corner of the dressing tent, resolved to keep a sharp lookout for Douglas.

Elverson was thrust from the tent soon after, splitting laughing and much discomfited, by the laughing performers who followed him. He kneeled almost gaseous way beneath him when Barker came out of the ring, snatching his long black whip.

"Get out of here, you bloke!" roared Barker, and Elverson "got."

No one had remembered to tell the groom that Polly was not to ride to night, so Bingo was brought out as usual when their "turn" approached.

"Take him back, Tom," Polly called from the entrance when she learned Bingo was waiting. "And bring Barnabian. I ain't going on tonight. Eloise is going to ride in my place."

This was the second time today that Bingo had been led away without going into the ring. Something in his big, wondering eyes made Polly follow him and apologize. He was very proud, was Bingo, and very conscious. He felt uneasy when he saw the other horses going to their work without him.

"Never mind, Bingo," she said, patting his great arched neck. "We'll show 'em tomorrow." He rubbed his snout against her cheek. "Well, make them sit up again. Barker says our net's no good—that I've let down. But it's not your fault, Bingo. I've not been fair to you. I'll give you a chance tomorrow. You wait. He'll never say it again, Bingo, never again!"

Polly had nothing more to do to admit except to get into her street clothes. The wagon would soon be moving away. For a moment she glanced at the dark church steeple; then she turned to go inside the tent. A deep, familiar voice stopped her.

"Polly!"

She turned quickly. She could not answer. Douglas came toward her. He stood at her in amazement. She drew her cape about her slightly clad figure. She seemed older to him, more unapproachable with her hair heaped high and sparkling with jewels.

She found strength at last to open her lips, but still no sound came from them. She and the pastor looked at each other strangely, like spirits newly met from far apart worlds. She, too, thought her companion changed. He was older, the circles beneath his eyes were deeper, the look in their depths more grave.

"We were such close neighbors to-day, I feel rather thought you, call!"

He was saying. It did not matter what he was saying. He was uncertain what he was saying with her.

"When you're in a circus there isn't much time for calling."

"That's why I've come to call on you." They might have been shepherding and shepherds on a May day wooing for the halting way in which their words came.

"You're all right?" he went on. "You're happy?"

"Yes, very," she said. Her eyes were downcast.

He did not believe her. The effort in her voice, her drawn, white face, belied her words. How could he get the truth from her?

"Jim said you might not want to see me."

She started.

"Jim Jim been talking to you?"

"Yes, but I didn't let him stop me, for you told me the day you left that you'd never change. I heard me. Have you, Polly?"

He studied her anxiously. "Why, no, of course not," she said evasively.

"And you'll be quite frank when I ask you something?"

"Yes, of course." She was growing more and more uneasy. She glanced about for a way of escape.

"Why did you leave me as you did?"

"I told you then. She tried to cross toward the dressing tent.

He for a moment wrists and forced her to look at him.

"And I am not happy without you, and I never, never can be." The flood-gates were open. His eyes were aglow. He bent toward her eagerly.

"Oh, you mustn't!" she begged.

"You've grown so close," he cried, "so close," she struggled to be free. He did not heed her. "You know, you must know, what I mean." He drew her toward him and forced her into his arms. "You're more precious to me than all else on this earth."

For the first time he saw the extreme pallor on her face. He felt her growing limp and lifeless in his arms. A death crossed his mind. "If I am wrong in thinking you feel as I do, if you honestly care for all this, if you glared about at the tents, 'more than for any life that I can give you, I shan't interfere. You'll be going on your way in an hour. I'll say good-by and bid them go, but if you do care for me, Polly, more precious to me than all else on this earth, won't you come back to me? Won't you, Polly?"

"Never mind, Bingo."

He dared not meet his eyes nor yet to send him away. She stood irresolute. The voice of Deacon Strong answered for her.

"So you're here, are you?"

"Yes, Deacon Strong, I'm here," answered the pastor as he tried to meet the accusing eyes of the deacon.

"I've been waiting," said Strong with an insolent and toward Polly. "I might have known how you'd keep your part of the bargain."

Poultry Secrets Disclosed!

There are secrets in the poultry business, as in any other; the best methods and newest discoveries seldom reach the amateur poultry raiser and the general public for years after they are originated. A new method of absolutely insuring the fertility of setting eggs, for example, has Success Socially and Financially.

The ice cream supper given at the M. E. church at Chenault, Friday evening, was one of the most pleasant and profitable affairs that ever occurred at that place.

The lady members of the church were assisted by Mesdames Owen May, of Lexington, Guy E. Burch, of Louisville, Horace Scott, of Gulfport, Miss, and Clayton Crosson, of Madisonville.

They were untiring in their efforts in making it a success. The interior of the church was well lighted and very artistically decorated in lilies, roses and ferns, and the lawn was hung in Japanese lanterns.

Each of the following young ladies presided very graciously at her table which was laid with a centerpiece of her handwork and decorated with a tall vase of roses: Misses Roberta Brodie, Violet Bosley, Bess Cunningham, Kate Roberts, Verna Bennett, Sue and Georgia Fyrmire.

Mr. Will Martin, of Derby, Ind., brought one of his fine graphophones and treated the crowd to quite a number of vocal and instrumental selections. The evening's amusement was interspersed with the recitation, "Rock of Ages," by Miss Laura Bosley, delivered in a most charming and impressive manner.

Prizes were awarded to Mr. Ben Fyrmire and Miss Georgia Fyrmire, who received the most votes as the handsomest boy and prettiest girl.

The members especially appreciate the services of Mr. J. C. Brodie and Mrs. Owen May, who devoted their entire time to making the arrangements for the supper. The large attendance was very gratifying, and the proceeds of the supper will be used to repair the church.

Making Money On the Farm

VII.—Small Grain Breeding

By C. V. GREGORY, Author of "Home Course in Modern Agriculture"

Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association

Small grain breeding is second only to corn breeding in importance. Indeed, there is even more chance for improvement along this line, since so little has been done already.

The average yield of oats in Iowa in 1908 was only twenty-three bushels to the acre, while many fields yielded three times that much. This is only one instance out of many that could be given to show the great need for improved seed.

With small grain, as with corn, the work of improvement must largely be done for each special locality. Each type of soil and climate affords a different opportunity to have its small grain breeder. There is no opening along the line of special farming that offers greater opportunity to the ambitious young farmer than this. The work is a little more particular than corn breeding perhaps, but the results are just as sure and the profits just as great. Even though you may not care to take up small grain breeding as a business, it will pay you to carry it on to a limited extent at least to provide improved seed for your own use.

Selection the Basis of Improvement.

The requirements of the various grain varieties with the use to which they are to be put, but the yield is an important point with all. Selection is the basis for improvement in yield as well as in the other points that will be taken up later. The first step is to select the variety that seems to be doing best in your locality, and use that as the basis of improvement. The simplest method for selection is to select a few of the best heads at harvest time to start with. A great difference will be observed at this time. Some varieties must be grown, however, to obtain three times as many berries as others not a foot away. The seed from these large heads, following the law of "like produces like," give larger yields.

The seed from the selected heads is sown on a plot by itself the next spring. Small grain is not like corn in that it is normally self-fertilizing. The flower is inside the hull, so that the pollen cannot get from one to the other. The only way cross pollination can be accomplished is by hand. Some improved varieties have been produced in this way, but the operation is too delicate and the results too uncertain for the beginner. Being self-fertilized, the only way small grain can be mixed is mechanically, by mixing the seed. It is not necessary that late breeding plots be a considerable distance away from the other fields, as in the case of corn.

The produce of this breeding plot should be thrashed separately and used for planting a larger field the next year. The year after that there will be enough seed for the entire acreage of small grain.

This method is simple and easily worked out on any farm. The trouble with it is that the inherited dirt ences in the yielding ability of different heads is not fully taken into account. The only way to tell which of two equal sized heads will yield most will be by actual test. If the greatest improvement is to be made individual head tests will have to be resorted to.

Individual Head Tests.

These individual head tests are carried on in much the same manner as the individual ear test with corn. The heads should be carefully selected in the fall. In addition to the size of the heads, the stiffness of the straw, its weight and freedom from rust and other fungus diseases should be noted. The rows in the breeding plot should be four inches apart and the kernels dropped the same distance apart in the row. The aim throughout should be to have the conditions as nearly like those of the field as possible. The number of rows will depend to a considerable extent on the time that can be devoted to the work. The larger the number the greater the probability of producing something good. Fifty rows is a good number to start with.

Increasing the Yields.

In the fall the rows should be carefully examined. Some will be lodged badly. Others will have poorly filled, short heads. Still others will be badly rusted or smutted. Discard all these and harvest and weigh the produce of each good row separately. There will be a few that will be considerably better than the rest. From these enough of the best heads should be selected to plant next year's breeding plot. The rest should be thrashed together and used for planting an increase bed. The seed from the increase bed is used to plant a larger field and the seed from this for the next year's increase bed.

By selecting the best heads for each year's breeding plot improvement is rapid and marked. It takes two or three years after the improved seed has been produced to obtain it in sufficient quantities for general use, but the results will pay for all the trouble, even if you produce seed for your own use only. After the superiority of your new strain is once shown, however, you will be besieged with requests for seed and can add considerably to your income by supplying the demand thus created. The trade will continue good, for each year you will have something a little better to offer. In addition to the selection for yield, strong straw and freedom from disease are a number of other points that should be considered. These depend to a considerable extent on the use to which the grain is to be put.

In selecting oats the per cent of hull is one of the most important points to look to. This varies from 20 to 50 per cent of the entire weight. Since oat hulls are of little more value than straw, it is evident that the smaller the percentage of hull the more valuable the oats will be. A mere examination will show the difference between a thick and a thin shelled oat. To de-
